right on the heels of the Giants, who also took the Reds into camp twice. The scores were 5 to 0 and 3 to 0. The success of the Cubs was largely due to the box work of Reubnach, who worked in both games. The speedy Chicago twirler set a season's record by scoring two shutouts in one day. He was a complete mystery to the learning the lesson of economies in management as a means of turning deficits to net increases in profits, even though the gross earnings show a loss.

One of the most encouraging signs is the increased distribution of dry goods, clothing and footwear. This despite the disposition of interior buyers to defer stocking up for a few weeks longer.
